 eProcurement Forum

The eProcurement Forum at ePractice.eu is an initiative sponsored by the European Commission to help all the practitioners in public electronic procurement (“eProcurement”) in Europe to meet and share their experiences and knowledge, to ask and provide support. The community is open to practitioners from European administrations, from public and private organisations, from academia and research centres. Hopefully such variety of stakeholders will provide different contributions, approaches and points of view. The eProcurement Forum is an open space to express opinions and exchange knowledge and where members are encouraged to provide contributions and participate in the discussions and events. It is not an official Commission site. The community is mainly focused on technical and organisational aspects of eProcurement.

Case Abstract

The Basque Government is the first administration to introduce e-procurement in Spain, having developed an integral eTendering system for the entire procurement process.

The system was developed to use eAdministration general architecture applications and provides for various levels of security and confidentiality.

The PETM-BCS contribute significantly to the evolution of e-procurement organizational, procedural, technical and operational aspects.

Special mention is made of the informational and training effort conducted for the 3,200 companies, training provided to officials and multi-channel support provided for all project areas.

All applications and materials are considered “open source” and available to all interested administrations.

★ UK: Launch of 'Procurement Scotland' creates savings for public sector

172 visits

Date	17 March 2008
Country	United Kingdom
Domain	eGovernment
Topic	eProcurement, eServices for Business

A new Procurement system for the Scottish public sector has already saved Scottish taxpayers over £1 million (€1.3 million) before even being launched.

Although 'Procurement Scotland' was only officially unveiled on 6 March 2008, an on-line auction of IT hardware held for the public sector in December, run by the body, saved over £1.2 million in comparison to a similar auction in early 2007. The Scottish Cabinet Secretary for Finance, John Swinney, welcomed the savings that the initiative facilitates, saying, "We must deliver benefits to the people of Scotland through value for money for taxpayers, improved goods and services for all our citizens; and economic opportunities for our businesses. That is what Procurement Scotland, and other procurement centres of expertise, will do."

Procurement Scotland is tasked with implementing national strategies for buying the common goods and services used by the public sector. These include a wide range of commodities, ranging from services and utilities, through to office equipment and IT hard- and software. It is hoped that this collaboration and coordination will prevent the duplication of effort and therefore cut costs. Suppliers are attracted by opportunities to win further business across the public sector in Scotland.

A central part of this is the eProcurement Scotland (ePS) system - a fully hosted and managed eProcurement service which supports the full purchase-to-pay cycle providing a range of services including eSourcing (electronic tendering and auctions) and transactional purchase-to-pay solutions. The aim of ePS is to be the system of choice for the public sector in Scotland and therefore the only system which suppliers need to join in order to do business with any public-sector organisation in Scotland.
